Week 3 Summary Report

Week 3 continued the typical steady pace of research and networking with other students. This week the instructor, Robin, provided the best feedback in structurizing my GitHub. The first assignment due this week was from Week 2, The Burn-Up List. The next assignment for me was Communicating with Visual Tools. Which helped research further into how programming works from start to finish by creating a flow chart. Following up that was the Week 3 Anchor points assignment which I ended up turning in late due to an error on the due date. The Call to Action assignment for the week was, Encouragement! This one felt very similar to the week 2 Call to Action assignment. The weekly research is where I learned a lot this week. I spent some time watching YouTube videos to learn about GitHub and think I finally have it laid out properly.
